Renewtek expands in Sydney

Renewtek, an Australian information technology company which specializes in the use of leading edge tools and technologies, has expanded its operation by recently recruiting a General Manager and two new Directors.

Leon Heydenrych, NSW General Manager, comes to Renewtek after several years experience in Marketing and Business Development roles with IT companies. Leon was originally a lawyer and will be head up the Sydney office.

Renewtek has appointed two new Directors to join their Board; Sydney-based Graham Libbesson and Melbourne-based Alan Fischer. Graham retired as Managing Partner from mid- tier accounting firm PKF in 1999, to take up private investment/Director roles as well as consulting assignments. Alan has had a long career with one of the top 4 professional services firm and has years of experience in advising boards, shareholders, financiers and senior executives on mergers, acquisitions and divestments. Alan has facilitated strategic planning exercises for companies and provides general corporate financial advice.

Renewtek's Chairman Mr Neil Perry, said that Renewtek has grown very rapidly to over 80 people in just three years.

"The company has huge growth plans and the expansion of our Sydney office ensures we can continue to increase our revenue three fold over the next few years."

"We have recently achieved the certificate of approval for ISO 9001-2000: Quality Management for technical consultancy and project delivery with a focus on providing technical skills to deliver critical business solutions."
